DERRICK WILL PILE SCRAP HIGHER TODAY SO AS TO MAKE MORE ROOM FOR SALVAGE YET TO BE COLLECTED

Pan from Old Canal Swinging Bridge Thrown Onto the Heap—Second and Fifth Wards Add 45 Tons To The Pile—Sixth Ward Collects Tonight

Bristol's Victory Scrap Pile is reaching such proportions that it has been found necessary to press a crane into service and pile the salvaged scrap metal higher. The crane loaned by the Superior Zinc Corporation will go to work this afternoon and pile the junk higher into the air, so that there will be ample room on the Legion grounds for the scrap which is to be hauled into the grounds tonight from the sixth ward and tomorrow night from the fourth ward.

The members of the Bristol Rotary Club will visit the pile this afternoon, each member depositing 100 pounds of scrap.

Last night 45 tons were turned in from the second and fifth wards. The second ward hauled in 39 tons and the fifth ward gathered 15 tons. This makes a total of 123 tons, unofficial weight, thus far in the pile.

Workers in the two wards started out early last night and hauled truck after truck load of scrap. All of the weighing was done on the O'Donnell scales as it has been found these scales are larger than other platform scales in Bristol and can better accommodate the big trucks with their high piles of scrap.

In addition to the 45 tons turned in by the two wards, last night, the fourth ward, second precinct, sent over a truck with two tons of scrap. The fourth ward collection will take place Friday night, but the two tons hauled last night could be more conveniently handled last night, so it was sent in ahead of time.

There were cash registers, meat slicers, boilers and scales in large numbers last night turned in with the scrap.

The heavy iron pan which was beneath the old swinging bridge at the canal at Washington street was donated by Arthur Seyfert. The pan was taken out of the canal several years ago when the bridge was removed and has been in the possession of Mr. Seyfert since.

Some other heavy pieces which boosted the weight for the second ward was heavy iron girders from the crane of the dismantled T. B. Harkins Foundry Company building. These were given to the salvage drive by the Bristol Trust Company.

Tonight the collection will be made in the sixth ward.

The War Production Board is giving a plaque to the State which produces the most scrap metal per capita in the newspaper collection drive of three weeks.

Every county in the United States which produces 100 pounds per capita during the drive can win a salvage victory pennant to fly from the courthouse or community victory stockpile.

Rev. Arthur Sargis Speaks at Hulmeville

HULMEVILLE, Oct. 1.—As part of the Rally Week program of Neshaminy Methodist Church, a special program was presented last evening in the Sunday School room by the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis, pastor of Eddington Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Sargis, as he showed pictures of America's beauty spots, drove home the fact that America is still defending, not only materially but spiritually.

The slides, in natural color, were taken during the clergyman's travels of the past few years, many being taken enroute to and along the Pacific coast states. The message of the people's need of Christ, the Light of the world, was presented throughout the showing of the films, the speaker stressing that salvation is through Him alone. "America is a beautiful country, and is worth defending; but not only should it be defended in things material, but we should build our spiritual defense," he added.

The problem of the empty benches in the churches was considered, the answer to such problem being the calling of the children and youth to aid in the training of them in the Sunday Schools, preparing them for their place in the world of things spiritual.

The Rev. Sargis, whose pictures and message were much appreciated, showed the Dells of Wisconsin, the Montana sheep country, Grand Coulee Dam in Washington, the big trees of California, Salt Flats of Utah, the Mountains of Kentucky, and also Pennsylvania scenes. Some of the mission projects in Kentucky were included.

The speaker was introduced by the pastor, the Rev. Wilmer E. Harkness. Miss Clara L. Illick was accompanist for the songs.

SCOUT CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS PROGRESSES

Judge Keller States That A Total of $2,604.25 Has Been Reported

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN

Hon. Hiram H. Keller, general chairman of the Bucks County Council Boy Scouts of America's annual maintenance campaign, announced today that he was satisfied with the progress of this Fall's campaign which officially opened on Sept. 12th. He said that the various community chairmen had felt that due to transportation difficulties the usual "kick-off and interim report dinners" should be omitted this Fall. For that reason, he said that complete returns from the 51 communities in Bucks county being solicited were not in. However, a total of $2,604.25 has been received from six communities, which compares very favorably with the same returns a year ago.

Judge Keller said he is much pleased to note that many contributors were mailing in their gifts direct to the council office without solicitation. He pointed out that again this year the prize solicitor so far reported was William S. Mason of Doylestown who had seen 65 prospects with only two turn downs and with 5 new subscriptions.

Judge Keller concluded by stating that the closing campaign dinner was being considered for October 12th but would only be held if the majority of the community chairmen favor having it. $13,736 was raised in the campaign a year ago and the present goal is $15,000. 2,200 boys were served throughout the Council territory during the past year and 173 Girl Scouts camped at the Boy Scout camp for two weeks during the past summer.

Concert Ass'n Campaign Is Now in Full Swing

"The membership campaign for the Bristol Cooperative Concert Association is advancing splendidly so far," says Mrs. Russell W. DeLong, membership chairman for the Association. "The enthusiasm with which the people of Bristol are responding indicates that the need for good music, presented by great artists, is greater this year than ever before, and all of our workers are making every effort to make these memberships available to everyone in Bristol."

Membership can be obtained at association headquarters, 240 Mill street, telephone 2346.

Many outstanding artists are being considered for the 1942-43 season. Much interest has been shown in Enya Gonzalez, attractive Filipino soprano, who was first sent to this country on a good-will tour under the sponsorship of Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippines, and is a favorite at the White House where she has sung for President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Famous for her "Madame Butterfly" in the opera of the same name, Miss Gonzalez has also an extensive repertoire of rarely heard classic Spanish songs and Philippine folk songs.

Three outstanding artists are assured to members of the Concert Association this year. Artists are not announced in advance as this is a co-operative, non-profit organization and is not supported by any group or individual in Bristol. Consequently it is necessary to secure memberships first, and book artists on the basis of the number of memberships secured, thus insuring against a deficit at any time. Admission to concerts is by membership card only. No single tickets will be available.

FOUNTAIN ERECTED IN HONOR OF THE BOYS FROM BRISTOL

Dedication Ceremonies To Take Place Sunday Evening

IS A HANDSOME TRIBUTE

Colored Lights Illuminate The Sprays of Water Spouting From Fountain

Early Sunday evening there is to be dedicated in Bristol a handsome electrically illuminated fountain in honor of those from Bristol who are in the armed services of the United States. The fountain is on the grounds of St. Ann's Club, Wood and Franklin streets, and that is where the ceremonies are to take place.

The dedicatory service will begin at 6.30 promptly when a service flag will first be raised in honor of the 56 members of St. Ann's Club who are now in the service and these exercises will be followed by the dedication of the fountain.

The fountain was constructed almost entirely by volunteer labor and members of the Club have spent many hours of hard and laborious work to construct it.

The fountain is situated in the center of a basin located in a court of evergreens. The basin and surrounding walks measure 42 feet in circumference and the basin is 22 feet in diameter. There are 22 lights in the walls of the basin and the fountain is in the center and is of artistic cobblestone masonry.

The water from the fountain shoots in a fine spray six feet into the air and the spray is illuminated by a rotary light diffusing six different colors, three of which are red, white and blue.

Then planted in artistic concrete boxes are small evergreens which have been placed at intervals around the outer edge of the basin.

The ceremonies Sunday evening are to be elaborate and spectacular. They will be participated in by the American Legion Cadets in their brilliant uniforms and the corps will be spotlighted. Miss Jean Esposito, whose brother is in the service, will portray "Miss Liberty" being appropriately costumed as such, and will wave the magic wand which will bathe the fountain in a flood of light.

The club's spokesman makes it plain that the fountain is in honor of all of the Bristol boys now in the armed service of the United States, and an invitation is extended to the entire community.

BIG SHOW IS ON

In the world of sports, these are the red letter days of the calendar, the great days toward which all dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans of the United States and Canada have pointed their interest since the beginning of the spring training season. It is World Series time, and the curtain has been raised on the biggest show of the baseball year.

Perhaps no census could reveal the exact number of baseball players in the area north of the Rio Grande. One guess is as bad as another, but the number of swingers of bats against balls, in city streets and commons, in sandlots and in school and college teams, amateur, semi-pro and professional leagues, must run into the hundreds of thousands. Out of all these emerge the few score who are the cream of the yearly crop.

When the "Play ball!" call is sounded these days, it is nine against nine, but millions are, in a country-wide audience. These days are no time for talk of war. First comes the World Series, let the rest of the world wag as it may.

The present contest offers more excitement and more opportunity for speculation and argument than any similar contest since last year. On one side is a metropolitan team which has been on top or near the top for so many years that man's mind hardly runs to the contrary. On the other is a rambunctious upstart, an apple-cart tipping crew from a Mississippi River town which has gone wild with an excitement that has communicated itself to all the hinterland. Good lads those from Saint Louis. They defeated Brooklyn.

OCTOBER

"There is something in October sets the gypsy blood a-strir." It is the month when the crisp hint of frost tempered with "sweet, calm sun shine," arouses a keen appreciation of living. Long walks in the clear air are stimulating. Early morning fogs and occasional showers which beat down the gold, red and russet wealth of the trees fail to destroy the spell.

One of the greatest charms of October is the superb coloring of its sunsets. And it is the month of fulfillment, of realization of harvests, of the full richness of nature's maturity.

October in Bucks County has a honey touch unrivaled anywhere else. Thrifty housewives are storing up the good things of the garden. Kitchens are fragrant with cooking spices to flavor crisp, crunchy pickles. Shelves are lined with jars of vegetables, jams and jellies.

School Lunch Box Suggestions

We hear much about nutrition these days and how essential it is for our daily menus to fill our nutritive needs. And it is equally important for mothers to see that the contents of their children's lunch boxes are also nutritious.

Since sandwiches form a main part of the school lunch, their preparation is most important.

Wholesome breads should be used for sandwiches. Graham whole wheat, oatmeal, brown, raisin and nut bread are excellent. Cold bran or whole wheat muffins or filled rolls are also tempting.

Fillings of the sandwiches require special preparation. Cheese, meat, eggs, nuts, dried fruits or vegetables should be put through the food chopper. Cream cheese, peanut butter and other compact substances should be thinned with cream. Ground meats, eggs, and vegetables should be moistened with a small amount of salad dressing or cream and vinegar. Succulent vegetables should be provided, if possible. Finely chopped celery, lettuce, water cress or sliced tomato may be used alone or with cottage cheese.

Jellies, jams and preserves make sweet sandwiches or a tiny jar of the fruited sweet may be tucked into the lunch box.

And please don't forget to include a thermos container of milk, and some kind of fresh fruit—such as an apple, pear, orange, banana, etc.

Care should be taken in the packing of the lunch. All foods not in containers should be wrapped separately in waxed paper before being placed in the box. The neatly wrapped articles should be placed, so far as possible, in the order in which the food will be eaten, so that those found first may be eaten first without disturbing the remainder. The heaviest foods, however, should be placed at the bottom.

Select a lunch box that can be kept clean. Lunch boxes should be washed, scalded and aired daily. Those made of lightweight metal are best. Many attractive boxes are now made with a vacuum bottle which fits the box. These are highly desirable. A lunch box should not be air-tight, as a circulation of air prevents the mingling of odors.

Paper napkins and cups are essential lunch box accessories.

Pilgrim in MANHATTAN by MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Hugh's ominous silence was to trouble her, as the days went by, to make her wonder whenever she stopped to think. Perhaps he had heard that she was going about with Rann. They did not go to the obvious place of amusement, did not care to, but perhaps Hugh had heard. Or he might be ill, or working day and night, as he had some times worked in 12-A.

He had refused to put in a telephone, so she could not call him. She would go over to see him.

Why did she worry about Hugh? True, she had made him live—or so he said—when he didn't want to. But that didn't mean she should be as concerned as a mother with a child.

Still, she told herself, if it had been any other man on earth she would have gone to him frankly and asked to be set free.

But for the present, Chloe was so happy with Rann, she had little time to more than think of Hugh.

Sometimes they dined at Robinson's, or in Rann's apartment at Seelman Place with Wang Foo to serve them.

Rann, Jr., was in Virginia, visiting his mother's family. He had not been well, and physicians had ordered the change.

Chloe wanted very much to meet that lonely little boy.

"I hope he's going to like me," she said to Rann.

"Like you? If he doesn't love you, he's not his father's son."

Rann returned to Washington, and on that desolate day Enid Vesper asked Chloe to lunch.

"I want to know you, Miss Cameron, Rann makes no secret of his admiration for you. Thorne likes you, too—and Biron. Biron has told us a great deal about you."

"Just you and I—so we can get acquainted."

They met in the Japanese Garden.

"Tell me about yourself, Miss Cameron," said Enid when they were seated in a cozy corner. "Your agency sounds interesting."

And as Chloe answered that it was mostly work, "Still," said Enid, "it's nice to have an occupation. I have no talent, it happens. My family have done their best for me, but there it is. I'm different from them all, in every way."

"So long as one appreciates..." offered Chloe.

"That's what I tell Hester Dillon," Enid said. "There must be audiences. Hester begged me to study the harp. You see, she was interested then in some musician who taught it. I think he gave back to Italy now."

Enid sighed. "I feel sorry for her," she continued.

"Is she unhappy?" Chloe was interested as always in any allusion to Hester.

"No, merely restless. Thorne's the unhappy one. Hester wants a divorce, and Thorne doesn't. Thorne is harmless and unromantic and she's tired of it all. She's in love with Rann Sturgis, and she'd like to clear the field by divorcing Thorne. Rann doesn't want her, anybody can see that. For one thing, he and Thorne are friends, as well as associated professionally. I feel sorry for her because she tries to amuse herself with Rolly Wain. You can't be satisfied with one man when you love another, can you?"

So that was it, Chloe was thinking. That was the thing she had sensed about Hester from the start.

"Have they children?"

"The Dillons?" Enid shook her head. "I can't imagine Hester with a child."

"She has definite ideas about rearing them," Chloe said.

"You mean, perhaps, about rearing Rann, Jr. Sometimes I think she's jealous because Rann has him. I like the child. He and I are great friends."

They talked of other things, and at the last Enid said, "You seem sensible, Miss Cameron. I'd like to ask you something, if I may. I'd like to know your opinion in a matter that puzzles me. Suppose a girl—Suppose she was very much in love, and with a boy who loved her in return. Do you think her parents—her mother, that is—should ask her to be governed by worn-out ideas, by what was right in another day?"

"It's hard to judge," said Chloe somewhat guardedly. "I mean, not knowing."

"But you do know," Enid was too direct a person to try to be mysterious. "You know us both. Mother is driving me mad. I made up my mind to talk to you. You can help us, if you will."

"Of course you are both very young," said Chloe, striving to sound judicial. "I think I know the young man in question."

"You mean Cliff Schuyler," Enid answered. "That was over long ago. I'm tired of crew hair-cuts and rah-rah and jingle bells. This is some one you know quite well. In fact, you're engaged to him, Miss Cameron, and that's the trouble."

Chloe said after a moment, "Do you mean Hugh?"

"Biron," replied Enid. "But I loved him before I knew he was Biron Torche. . . . Miss Cameron, please. . . ." For Chloe had left off eating and was abruptly pensive.

"I knew this would be hard for you," said Enid. "Biron would never have told you himself, and he doesn't know I'm doing it. He's told me how you nursed him when he was ill, and about the interest you've taken in his work. He's grateful to you. He has an idea he ought to devote his whole life to you out of gratitude. . . . He loves you like a—Of course, you aren't old enough to be his mother, but it's like that. And he might have been happy with you, if we hadn't met each other, and if I hadn't made him love me in the real way. For I did make him, though it wasn't hard. And he does love me. And we're both miserable. It isn't right."

Here she and Rann were striving to provide Hugh with counter interests and he had found one for himself. He had found all things for himself, even a job. If he married Enid, the job wasn't far away.

Chloe said, "It would be wonderful for you to marry—Biron."

It would, all things considered. Real love, and the rest. . . . If I had only guessed, thought Chloe.

"And you'll release him?" Enid's question was hanging in the air.

"Why not, since he loves you?"

"I mean—" Enid had planned this interview for days and was finding it so simple that she felt confused. "I mean—you'll go to him and voluntarily break things off?"

Otherwise . . . he'll never do it himself. He really—never would!"

"I'll break it myself," said Chloe. "And you won't betray me?"

"No. That would spoil everything."

After the luncheon, Enid unfettered the white orchid from her furs and pinned it on Chloe. A pretty gesture, a "thank you." . . . They went out into the street, and Enid asked,

"May I drop you somewhere?"

"I was wondering," said Chloe, "if Hugh . . ."

"Yes, he's at home," with a certain eagerness. "He's writing. I'll drop you at the corner of Lexington," as they got into the blue coupé. "I'd better not take you to the door."

Chloe went up the steps of the house on Thirty-eighth Street, trading on air. The maid remembered her, and she flew up the stair arriving a bit breathlessly at Hugh's door. She waited a moment. She mustn't appear too rejoiced over her errand. She must save his pride. He had tried to save hers.

She knocked, having got her breath again.

"Who is it?" Hugh's voice, annoyed, surprised.

"It's Chloe, Hugh."

After a moment the door opened. "Come in, Chloe."

He had put on his coat—such formality!—had run a comb through his hair. "Things are upset," he said. "If you had telephoned—"

So he had succumbed to a telephone. It was on his desk, amid heaps of disordered manuscript. The whole place was upset.

She sat down on the chair he cleared for her.

"Hugh," she said after a moment. "Why didn't you tell me—about you and Enid?"

"He looked at her, and was silent. "You don't think I'd want to marry you when you love some one else, do you?" And as he did not answer, "You hated to hurt me, was that it?"

"Something like that."

He had risen, and stood, hands in pockets, at the window, looking out. "I want you to know," said Chloe, "that you are as free as if you had never seen me."

She did not miss the light on his face. But when he turned to her he said, "What about you?"

"It's funny," she replied. "I mean—we're funny. I love some one else, too."

He stared. "You love—some one else?"

"Rann Sturgis," she said.

"Why didn't you tell me? Why on earth—Oh, I know. Because I had been ill. You didn't think I could take it."

"Sturgis," he repeated. "I knew he was interested in a way, but—"

"But not serious," supplied Chloe. "I didn't think you cared for him," he answered. "I wonder if you do. I wonder if you're telling me this—just to make it easy for me."

"No, I'm really in love. We're going to be married."

He said presently, "Sturgis is a fine chap. You'll be happy."

"You, too, Hugh. She's lovely."

"Lovely, yes. . . . She's everything."

BEFORE THE SUMMER DOING SOMETHING WELL TO PROVIDE PROTECTION

By Edna Stephany
Home Economics Representative

As days are shorter, the weather is cooler, and summer is gone. It's time to put away your summer clothes for their annual "rest" and this year you are to do a thorough job of it.

Washing clothes away carefully during the season they are not worn keeps them in better condition, lengthens their life span. It pays to spend a little to see that they are in good shape ready to wear again on short notice, and to store them well.

In your end-of-season routine of the kind of clothing you put away, are some tips to help you store your clothes.

Dresses, Coats, Jackets—First take care of each dress, coat, and jacket carefully to see if it needs repair. Mend any tears, snags, loose buttons, ripped seams, or other damage.

Look over washable dresses to see if they have any stains—if they do, try to remove them. Then tub these dresses thoroughly. . . and iron if you wish . . . before you store them. You can put away these dresses in boxes or on hangers in protective bags.

See that non-washable dresses are clean, and hang them in garment bags that will keep out the dust. Close the fastenings on these dresses, as well as on any garment you store on a hanger, to help keep the garment in shape.

Launder washable summer coats or jackets before you store them. If they are soiled, non-washable types need dry cleaning. Put these coats or jackets on hangers, padded if possible and store in protective bags.

If the garment is all wool or partly wool, safeguard it against clothes moths and carpet beetles. After washing or dry-cleaning the coat or jacket, put it in a protective bag with paradichlorobenzene crystals, balls, or flakes in the pockets and a bag of these preventives hung over the neck of the hanger.

Seal or fold the edges of the bag so that moths or beetles cannot get in. Then hang the bag in a cool closet.

You may have some wool or part wool garments that are not soiled enough for laundering or dry-cleaning. If so, brush these coats or jackets thoroughly both inside and out—with particular emphasis along the seams because moths often deposit eggs in such sheltered places. Then air the garments well before storing. Store in the manner described above.

Bathing Suits and Caps—Don't forget that your bathing suit needs care too, especially if it contains wool. Wash your suit in warm suds, rinse and dry thoroughly, and store in a box. If your suit is wholly or partly wool, put moth crystals, balls, or flakes with it and either wrap the box well or seal it so moths or carpet beetles cannot get inside.

As for that bathing cap—it's double valuable now that there is a rubber shortage. Wash and dry your cap and put a little talcum powder or corn starch inside it before storing. Put it away in a cool dark place.

"Once-Over" for Shoes—Give your summer shoes a "once-over" and a good cleaning before you store them. If they need repairing, it's best to have it done before putting them away—so they will be ready when wanted.

Put shoes on shoe trees and store them in boxes or in a shoe cabinet where they will be protected from dust. Store them in a dry place to discourage mildew. Also avoid too warm a place.

If you have any shoes made from material that contains wool, put moth crystals, balls, or flakes in the box with them. You can take the shoes out once in awhile to make sure they are free from moths. At that time you can also brush and air them as a further precaution.

Store Hats with Care—Pack turbans or little soft hats with no particular shape of their own several to the box —with tissue paper to protect the more fragile ones. Straw hats can be more easily damaged and need a little more attention. Take off any veils or fragile trimmings first. Then place the hats—each in its own box—brim side down whenever possible and resting on loosely wadded tissue paper. Put some tissue paper inside the crown and some around the outside of the hat too.

If there is room inside the box, you can pack the hat's veiling or loose ornaments with it. And lastly, put the hat box where it will not be moved around constantly.

"My family is drinking more milk today because"

Milk has long been known as the most nearly perfect food. It supplies a treasure trove of minerals and vitamins. These promote buoyant health—So necessary today when the nation needs your all-out effort on the job.

One of the most important minerals in milk is calcium. It reduces the irritability of tissue and relaxes muscles. And milk contains several times as much calcium as any other common food—in readily assimilable form.

That is why milk can help overcome those "war nerves" that most of us have today—the result of working under pressure and living in a hectic wartime world.

Your own family may have benefited from milk. Why not tell us about it. You may win a $25 War Savings Bond.

preciation to the newspapers for the generous way in which they have devoted their space to instructing the people of Pennsylvania concerning the rapid and varied developments in Civilian Defense.

"These measures for our self defense, or self protection, are all so new to us that the most widespread dissemination of information is essential. All the newspapers of the state have shown a willingness to carry this information to the people. It is amazing and gratifying to note the understanding that people have attained as to what is expected of them and how each should act and cooperate in protective measures."

In telling about how the Press had made the Selective Service Law workable, Colonel B. F. Evans, acting director for the Pennsylvania Selective Service Headquarters, said:

"Day in and day out, the newspapers of Pennsylvania quietly and effectively do their job of supplying the public with all of the news from all of the world."

"Getting that news quickly and accurately, the public is able to form opinions and act for the national welfare. With this enlightenment, the public is free of such morale-breakers as rumor, uncertainty, confusion, fear and despair."

"The newspapers of Pennsylvania are playing a vital part in this war. They deserve the praise and the respect and the confidence of the people. I know that as far as Selective Service is concerned, the newspapers of this Commonwealth have done more than words can describe to help make this great effort successful."

Colley S. Baker, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Salvage Committee, declared:

"Pennsylvania's daily and weekly newspapers, cooperating with State, county and local Salvage for Victory Committees, have made it possible to keep the war production mills of this Commonwealth operating at full capacity during the first eight months of this year."

"As the Executive Secretary of the Advisory Committee on Salvage of the State Council of Defense and the representative of the General Salvage Section of the War Production Board in Pennsylvania, I want to take this opportunity of thanking the newspapers of the State for the fine support they have given to this most necessary war effort."

For Oyster Fanciers

Do not limit your consumption of oysters to the ordinary oyster stew, fried oysters, oysters on the half shell, or oyster cocktails. Naturally these are the more popular methods of serving the particular sea food in question - but there are many other novel and delicious forms which oyster lovers will enjoy. Here are two "different" oyster dishes that will definitely please:

Oyster Casino
30 oysters in the shell
Lemon juice
Buttered crumbs
Pepper and salt
30 one-inch squares sliced bacon
Wash and open the oysters. Into each shell put a half teaspoon of strained oyster liquor, a few drops of lemon juice, then the oyster sprinkled with pepper and salt and covered with buttered crumbs. On each lay an inch square of bacon and set in a hot oven (400-450 degrees F.) for ten or twelve minutes. Shallow ovenware dishes, with the half-shells embedded in coarse salt, are excellent for this purpose. The salt keeps the shells from tipping during baking. Where shells are not available, arrange the oysters for each portion in a shallow ramekin. These are excellent for Sunday night supper or as a luncheon dish.

Baked Oysters with Spaghetti
½ pound spaghetti
1 pint oysters
Salt and pepper
1 cup bread crumbs
½ cup melted fat
¼ cups milk
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
Break the spaghetti into small pieces, boil it in plenty of salted boiling water until it is quite tender, and then drain. Scald the oysters in their own liquor, reserving the liquor. Oil a baking dish, put in a layer of the spaghetti and then a layer of the oysters, season with salt and pepper, and repeat the layers until all the oysters and spaghetti are used, finishing with a layer of spaghetti. To the liquor from the oysters, add enough milk to make a pint, reserving a small quantity to mix with the flour. Scald the remainder, add the scalded milk to the moistened flour, stir well and cook 20 minutes in a double boiler. Take from the fire, add the melted fat and pour over the layers in the dish. Top with bread crumbs mixed with melted fat and bake in a quick oven (400-450 degrees F.) just long enough to brown the crumbs, about ten minutes.

Plans are being completed for the annual banquet of the Bristol Suburban League which will be held in the Lido Venice Restaurant, Andalusia, Monday night, October 12th.

Henry Morgan and Joseph Diamanti are co-chairmen of the affair and it is expected that all arrangements will be completed at a meeting to be held tomorrow night at the Diamond Sporting Goods Store, Mill street.

The Edgeley team, champions of the 1942 season, will be honored at the affair and will be given a large trophy. Edward DeKoy, manager of the club, will accept the trophy for his team. The runner-up trophy will be given to the Voltz-Texaco team which is managed by George Dougherty.

An award will be given to the leading batsman and pitcher of the league as well as the best defensive infielder and outfielder. The most valuable player will be picked by the managers of the loop and he will also be given an award.

At the meeting tomorrow night, tickets will be distributed to the managers of the following teams: Badenhausen, Diamond, St. Ann's, Voltz-Texaco, Edgeley, and Hunters. Anyone wishing to attend the affair is requested to contact the manager of any of the above teams.

"GREASE MONKEYS" WANTED

ENID ARMY FLYING SCHOOL, Okla.—(INS)—A few years ago they were called "grease monkeys." Now they go around with the impressive title of airplane mechanic. And most of them carry on their sleeves the chevrons that mean a non-commissioned rating and higher pay.

They are the men who were once called the unsung heroes of the Army Air Corps. But since the United States went on a war footing, their importance has been realized by the public and now many skilled technicians are leaving their trades and offering their skills to the Air Corps where they can be best utilized.

LANGHORNE XI OPENS SEASON OCTOBER 10TH

Because of a cancellation of several games, Coach Charlie Beck's Langhorne high school team does not open its season until Saturday, October 10th, when it plays George School.

The teams which have withdrawn from the Langhorne schedule are Newtown, Fallsington and Pemberton. This sliced the schedule to seven games, besides George School, the opposing teams being: Bristol, Morrisville, Bensalem, Lower Moreland, Upper Moreland, and St. Francis, of Edgington.

Coach Beck had the following players practicing daily with the hope of having a successful season: Clark, Spadaccino, Cloak, Reed, Knox, Walsh, Salvatore, Flannery, Miller, Hammond, Wilson, McCarthy, Carter, Connolly, Farley, Paul, Richmond, R. Spadaccino, Delessandro, Daugherty, Mucklow, Lukens, Hisey, Hibbs and Picotti.

FASHION PARADE

By Grry-Kelly
(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Most Hollywood actresses plan their personal wardrobes ahead of time. Thus there are no hurried and therefore unwise selections. Milady can make her September appearance poised and assured that she is suitably gowned because her outfits were planned and purchased a month or two before.

Alexis Smith, lovely Warner Bros. star who will be seen next in "The Constant Nymph" has just acquired a stunning Fall topcoat, and hat and bag to go with it. The coat, of flame-red wool, is styled on full lines, but has the unique feature of a half-belt on the inside which may be pulled through slits to button the back of the coat into a fitted silhouette. The hat is a high-crowned cloche of dark green felt and the bag of matching green leather.

Joan Bennett is also all set for Fall days with a new topcoat and hat. In fact, Miss Bennett is already wearing it for cool evenings. The coat is a nubby purple tweed with a yoke that is squared at the front and draped to a point at the back. The hat, of bright purple yarn, is styled like a fez with loops of the wool making a fringe at the back. Miss Bennett wore this purple ensemble the night she dined with Walter Wanger, her husband, and their house guest, Wendell Wilkie, at the Los Feliz Brown Derby.

Olivia de Havilland was exchanging fashion notes with Jane Wyman the other day on the set to Warner Bros. "Princess O'Rourke," in which both girls will appear. Olivia told Jane about her new short fur coat for Fall. It is one of the new 32-inch coats of black Persian lamb. It is cut on boxy lines with a tuxedo collar and cuffed sleeves. Not only is it excellent for an extra fur fashion for mild weather wear, but it is smart and practical for through-the-winter wear over warm, slim-skirted suits and wool dresses.

Jane's newest purchase was also a fur buy—a mink Cossack Papakho and muff.

VICTORY CANNING

my compliments

During the past months, women everywhere have "pitched in" to help Uncle Sam by canning fresh fruits and vegetables. And there's still time to put up some of the late season varieties. Naturally, you'll want clearly printed labels to place on the jars and glasses in your victory pantry.

To show I'm behind this effort 100%, I'm offering a free 16-page book of Fall canning labels. Write for your free copy today. Address: Advertising Department, 900 Sansom St., Philadelphia.
